

The headlines say it all, we have moved into uncharted territory. Regardless of the current economic climate, businesses, governments and consumers must continue to operate. The risks around us have increased and success will come to those who are best prepared to deal with those risks.

To help make sense of these risks, PCTC as part of its Networking Night, has brought in an expert in global finance. Dr. Robert Ironside, ABD, Ph.D. is a noted finance professor, lecturer and trainer. He has taught undergraduate and graduate students at two leading Canadian universities as well as bankers from approximately 20 countries around the world. He is an expert at making complex financial topics intelligible to everybody, regardless of background.

Dr. Ironside will speak about the roots of the problems facing the financial markets. His clear and open presentation style combined with insight and expertise promise to leave us all with a better understanding of what has happened, what is happening and what may happen. Better understanding leads to better preparation and a better chance to navigate successfully through the difficult conditions facing business today.
